Spiritual growth

As you may know I am in a season of learning right now, both within my studies at Texas Baptist as well as my role here in the OBP. With this being the case, I think it is suitable for me to share the ways God is cultivating me as a student of the Word. Right now, God is teaching me a lot about practical love for those in my life of whom which I have a hard time loving. This semester has been very edifying and some new relationships have begun to sprout which has been really important due to the fact that I have been preaching every weekend for a little over 2 months. Spending less time being poured into on Sundays, has not been too hard on me due to the amazing community I am a part of here at Texas Baptist.

What's coming?

As I have mentioned, there are a lot of things cooking! If you were not already aware, Allison & I are getting married in January which is super exciting. With things coming closer, it is beginning to feel real and I could not be more excited! We have many Outreach opportunities in 2026 that I want to make you aware of which include: Winter Olympics Outreach in February (Milan, Italy), World Cup Outreach (Houston, Arlington, and many more), and of course the SuperBowl Outreach in February (California). I ask that you would prayerfully consider participating in one, if not multiple of these events. Please learn more at hughroth.com and theOBP.com. I am looking for more deputation appts., so if you or someone you know is interested in hearing about the ministry, please contact me through my website! I am doing everything I can to get participants/host churches for our many world cup games. If you are in Texas, please consider joining me in Houston and Arlington. Please be praying for our ministry, and please reach out if you would like to host an outreach or join us for outreach!

What's new?

The past 2 months have been very active. I decided to include two months in this newsletter because both months looked about the exact same. First off, the semester began back in August, and it has been amazing. Not only is school back to dominating my schedule, but I have been raising funds for the ministry, moving forward with developing training methods/materials, making connections for our World Cup Outreach, as well as preparing for our coming outreach in Italy. There is a lot of things making small steps of progress, but big things are coming soon and I am very excited! We have made a lot of progress on our future training plans, and the fundraising is going very well. Allison and I need $9400 to get to Italy, and the last time I checked we are now at $8600, and still have a handful of preaching appointments in the next couple of months. Thank you for your prayers and giving! God is making a way, and we are very thankful. Wedding planning is going really well... Things are starting to feel real! I have also been working part time for the school doing their social media management, which has been pretty fun, and I also have began a new photography project which I hope to share more about in the near future. To the left are pix I grabbed at some of my preaching opportunities from the past couple months.
